Hajar Ouknider is a Fulbright scholar from Hassan II University. In Morocco, despite the legislation that calls for the inclusion of People with Disabilities (PWD), they are still not fully included in general education. Her research explores the education of PWD in a cross-cultural context and aims at developing a Moroccan inclusive education model.

Rocío González Suárez from University of Coruña in Spain has investigated the interaction and relationship of self regulated learning and motivation on the academic performance of elementary students using an explanatory sequential mixed method.

Uxía Regueira from the University of Santiago de Compostela in Spain will share her study on the relationship between experiences of mediated participation and digital literacy, from a gender perspective based on the Theory of Social Practice.
